Subject: Co-author permissions for my dissertation

Hello Everyone,

It is finally that time, I am in the last few weeks before submitting my PhD dissertation! One task that is required of me before I submit is that I need to obtain permission from each co-author on my research papers granting me permission to include them in my dissertation for reprinting purposes.

When you have a free moment, would you mind replying to this email and include your name with the short sentence, "I, (YOUR NAME) give Brett D. Van Houghton permission to include the paper, of which I am a co-author, in his doctoral dissertation submitted to the Faculty and the Board of Trustees of the Colorado School of Mines in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy (Environmental Engineering)."

I am required to submit my dissertation no later than August 16, two weeks from yesterday. If you could please try to get this back to me by then, I would greatly appreciate it.

If you have any questions regarding this, please do not hesitate to contact me as soon as possible.

It has been a pleasure working with all of you and I hope to continue to collaborate on future research projects after my degree is completed.

Thank you so much for taking the time to help me with this,

Brett

Hi Brett,

Here you go. Best of luck when your defense comes. Some advice, you know more about your topic than all of your committee. They will take you to the edge of what you feel comfortable defending. If you are sure stick to your guns when pushed if you know you are right. However know when to say I don't know but follow up with how you would find out. At the end of your defense you have the same title as the people questioning you, and they are trying to make sure it is earned.

Cheers,
Mark
